CONDENSED CREAM OF MENACE

(complete minutes can be read in APA -L and are filed in the archives)

Meeting #3508, November 4, 2004
George Van Wagner, President
Karl Lemke, Scribe

Now that meeting # 3507 was over, President George issued his patented meeting start-up monologue, and then called meeting # 3508 to order at 20:22:09.

Special Orders of Business: did not exist this week.

The Menace were read and accepted as "Seventy and counting...69...68..."

The Registrar: announced a returning guest. Steven Barnes returns after five years.

Tonight's Patron Saints: We have a full slate tonight. However, let's stop and pay tribute to this week's patron saint, another of the pantheon George has never met: Woody Dodge. Matthew Tepper: he's a kind, generous and thoughtful soul. He's a veteran, and currently resides at VA hospital in Westwood. He has given Matthew advice and assistance with automobiles. Hare Hobbs recalls Woody as a quiet guy, and that may be why so few people have stories about him. Mike Thorsen: He gave us money. Woody Dodge was given Three Cheers, and a better institutional memory (and a Subaru commercial....)

Committee to Gouge: sold off a small space fleet.

New business: A motion to draft a letter of congratulations to Acres of Books – on the occasion of its 70th Birthday. Established November 1934.

The question was called: "Here question!!!" It passed.

Time to nominate for the Board of Directors.
Nominations were made.

Liz Mortensen
Cathy Beckstead
Michael Thorsen

After giving potential nominations a last chance, the nominations were closed. Chances are, the election of Board members will be very short next week.

Committee Reports: CLJII arranged for the Lantern O'Jack to levitate around the room, pulling a lovely assistant behind it, while he announced the Winter Holiday party. We do not have a FWEMS this month, because many people will be off, in the same city, for once, at some convention. There will be a FWEMS in December.

The Sands Through the Hourglass Committee – we're trying to put together Cream of Menace Soup. We have Menace from Jack Harness and Ted Johnstone. If you've ever produced Menace, please submit what you feel are your two best efforts. These will be gathered together and published as an official LASFS publication.

Scott Beckstead: The committee to shoot the LASFS announces there are three prints available.

Ken Porter reported on the past weekend's Mah Jongg tournament – There was a winner, Tom Safer took the consolation prize, with lowest score in the tourney.

Kris Bauer: Estrogen Zone is going to the dogs this month.

Movies include Teenwolf, I was a teenage Werewolf, and other wolf movies. Said Kris, "We're giving werewolves a shot." Better use silver.

Time-Bound Announcements: Brad Linaweaver stated that Richard Hatch and he have been working on Battlestar Galactica novels. Richard's developing a TV series, "Magellen". Brad's trying to get him to come to LASFS to talk about the series. He has a book he co-authored with Forry for sale. Also, premiering at Loscon, an alternate history book he wrote. Also, Nasty, Brutish, and Short stories. Also for sale.

Francis Hamit, in the spirit of blatant commercialism, has started an electronic publishing company. So far, it publishes only his stuff. Look in the e-docs section on Amazon, 21 pages of titles. There are a couple of Star Trek things. If you buy and read something, review it.

Rick Foss: The LASFS story that was photographed at the club last week should appear next week. It got pre-empted by the election.

Bernie Zuber, long time artist, is having a show at the Underground Artist Society Gallery, in Altadena. He's very excited.

Michael Mason would have announced that the Gift Exchange is happening the second Friday of December, except he wasn't here. Remember, the purpose of the Gift Exchange is to have fun.

He would also have mentioned that next Thursday is an election. If you have any business to clean up with the library, take care of it now.

Miscellaneous: The heavily anticipated motion passed at 21:09:13.

Meeting #3509, November 11, 2004

George Van Wagner, President
Karl Lembke, Scribe

In 1918, peace broke out. 1959, the first episode of Rocky and Bullwinkle aired. In 2004, thanks were given to all the US veterans as President George called meeting # 3509 to order at 20:14:40. Also, 64 years ago today, Kate Smith sang God Bless

America, and Irving Berlin collected his first royalty check

The Menace were read and accepted as "space doubt."

The Registrar: announced that we have no visible guests. Invisible guests were invited to make noise for Michelle.

Tonight's Patron Saint: Alas, George hasn't met this one either. [By the end of the evening, he had.] But he's read wonderful things about him in the hagiography: Milt Stevens. Hare Hobbs: Milt was chairman of LACon II, Hare's first Worldcon. He ran things well, and worked for the Police Department, developing software. He would write fanzines about it, and had very interesting tales of the police in his fanzines. He's quiet, but has lots of fun stories to tell. Ed Green: Milt has one of the driest senses of humor he's met in fandom. (I suppose he walks around with a dehumidifier, just in case. - ed.) He retired after 20 odd years, and then became a consultant for more money. He's one of the best fan writers around, and he's mild mannered, and will occasionally surprise people by talking tough.

Bob Null: one pattern he used was a fanzine based on "A Modest Proposal" starting out in a very reasonable fashion, and thereafter departing from sense. Jerry Pournelle: He co-Chaired first Space Development conference, and Jerry didn't have to do any work Marty Cantor; he's a great fanwriter, and Marty usually manages to twist Milt's arm into writing something for his genzine. He's also OE of FAPA.

Hare, again: At the L-5 Conference opening ceremonies, the fan Guest of Honor was Robert A Heinlein. When he walked into the room with those aerospace engineers, it was like God walking in. Milt did a spectacular job setting up the convention. Milt Stevens was given Three Cheers and that's perfectly appropriate.

Old Business: Election of members of the board of directors.

The color of the Ballot was auctioned and declared G.R.E.E. N. The slate was elected, as per the rules in the LASFS by-laws.

Reviews: Matthew Tepper reviewed an item in which some LASFS members had a part – the Camarillo Theater production of Bye Bye Birdie. The cast included our own Cathy and Patrick Beckstead, and one of Matthew's cousins in the chorus. Friday, sat, sun 2 PM.

Doug Crepeau: About May in 2003, the Pentagon published a report on global warming. Near the end, it reads like SF. It's starting to show up on news in the past few days. The Northwest Passage is close to being open. It's endangering polar bears, walruses, and the Gulf Stream.

Jerry Pournelle: There's global warming on Mars, too. We figure it's all the emissions from the Mars Rovers. And Fidlos, too?

Fannish Committee Reports: Scott Beckstead: The committee to shoot the LASFS has three pictures left.

George added a report. There's an open-source astronomy fly-by program called Celestia. It can be found at Sourceforge.net and other places, or google on Celestia. Rumor has it someone may be working on a model of the Ringworld.

Miscellaneous: The heavily anticipated motion passed at 20:58:42.

Meeting #3510, November 18, 2004

George Van Wagner, President
Karl Lembke, Scribe

On this date in 1477, the first English Printed book was published. In 1805, Lewis and Clarke reached the Pacific Ocean. In 1894, the first newspaper Sunday color comics were published in the New York New World. 1928, Steam Boat Willie debuted. President George called meeting # 3510 to order at 20:12:34.

The Menace were read and accepted as "Literally correct but inclined to start rumors."

The Registrar: No new guests, but Shaun has given Liz $5. For the membership fee. Let's keep our connotations straight.

Tonight's Patron Saints: Another unmet – Jim Tanenbaum. JP He wore the worst sweaters of anyone he knew. Jim is a longtime audio editor, who lives in the Hollywood Hills And he gave us money. Mr Tanenbaum was given the official Three Cheers, and a fir coat.

Committee Reports: Marty Cantor notes the committee to De Prof will do so tomorrow. Anyone who gets by during the week or Thursnight can pick up De Prof, but most will probably get theirs mailed. One thing that will be in De Prof will be The rules for the Gift Exchange. It's that time of the year again.

Michelle announced late breaking guests, including one who was at a meeting in 1965: William and Thomas Rupp

Time-Bound Announcements: Tom Stern announced his father passed about 3 months ago. They're selling his house. They're trying to find room for his stuff. The house is in the Windsor Hills area, near Slauson and La Brea. Stuff, free to a good home, includes plates, silverware, TV, VCR, desks, tables, Pentium 75, HP compatible printer. Address and maps are available.

Len Moffatt notes fans of Peter S Beagle will have an unabridged audiobook of The Last Unicorn. Details on distribution and release are in development. Peter will be reading and singing the songs. He's written a sequel to The Last Unicorn. Those who buy the CD will get a free advance copy of the sequel. Log on to <www.peterbeagle.com> for details.

Reviews: Rick Foss reviewed Bitter Water by Wenn Spencer – an extremely intricate SF series. Very good writing, but the plot in this book is muddier than previous ones.

Patten: Alien Chronicles – first in a trilogy. Contest: see how far you can read into it before you see it's a rip-off of Exodus.

Fannish Committee Reports: George van Wagner reported on the committee to promote alternate realities. Beverly Mitchell, 46, vacationing in Greece. On returning home, she found someone had moved into her house and was redecorating. Even utility accounts had been changed to someone else's name. The "house sitter" was arrested for trespassing. Unfortunately, Ms. Mitchell did not appreciate the redecorating style and is having to undo it.

Rick Foss, reporting on "surrealism in daily life" In an instructional design class, the students were assigned a project to develop instructional design statements for a training course. The teacher forgot to mention class should be possible. One student's effort began with: "Student will be given all possible books on philosophical books and use them to develop a comprehensive philosophy of life, the universe, and everything," or something like that. Then the going got tough.

Hare Hobbs, part of the Committee to Read Locus, notes that Bruce Sterling will be teaching at Pasadena's Industrial Design Center College. In other news, Joe Haldeman went on vacation, and the house sitter stole his credit card, trashed the house, sold drugs and had prostitutes there, drank all the alcohol, and went on to write a sequel to Moon of Ice. John deChancie was heard to remark, "sounds like Brad Linaweaver has been busy again." Frank Waller claimed innocence in the affair.

Don Wenner has a dumb and dumber report – an inexperienced driver in the styx had his car stop. He went out to look. Instead of a flashlight, he used his lighter to look under the hood. The fuel line had come loose, and the car's owner is now without eyebrows. In the other report, a criminal was clever enough to steal a car out of impound. A few weeks later, police got a domestic disturbance call. They found several stolen items from the car in the man's room.

One guest had a fannish committee report.... Bill Rupp announced a magazine, continuum Science Fiction. He's interested in magazines. He has a few copies for sale. And another deal – nice flyers. See him if you're willing to put them on the fan table at Loscon.

Glenn Olson notes the calendar submission in LATimes. How do you put an astronaut child to sleep? You rocket.

Miscellaneous: Rick Foss sold another story to Analog.

Joe Zeff notes that Joe Fekete got around to putting his story up on gateway website.

The heavily anticipated motion passed at 21:07:52.

Meeting #3511, November 25, 2004

Phil Castora, presiding
Karl Lembke, Scribe

Having had some experience at this sort of thing (but not enough to know to run away), Phil Castora called meeting # 3511 to order at 20:10:22.

Special Orders of Business: Marty had a happy special order. Wilson "Bob" Tucker's 90th birthday, last Tuesday. His role in creating the fandom we know today: Before Bob, fandom was 100% discussing science fiction, nothing else. His fanzine, E Zombie, in the early to mid 30s, introduced humor into fandom, and talking about fans and fandom. He produced one of the first paper fanzines, and now produces an e-zine. He lives in Bloomington, right near Normal. This is the only way he's anywhere near Normal. MBT added, he also wrote a pretty good time travel novel, The Lincoln

Hunters. Zeff moved that the Secretary be requested to bring in a card for signing. It passed. Note, we had no call for an "appropriate" card.

The Menace were read and accepted as "some assembly not required, all required."

The Registrar: was not here.

Tonight's Patron Saints: Frank Gasperik. Phil Castora said, "he's been a good friend and true for many, many years, going back to the time he fixed my car." Matthew Tepper recalls, the two of them used to be in the strategic games club at Santa Monica College in the early 70s. Frank is a good friend and true, and has given much helpful advice. "If Frank agrees with me," Matthew said, "he must be right." Bob Null observed, Frank starred in Lucifer's Hammer, Joe Zeff added, Frank also starred in Footfall, and Fallen Angels. And he seconds the fixing cars comment. And he gave us money. Frank Gasperik was given Three Cheers. Frank notes he's been mined for plot ideas, characters, and dirty tricks since before joining LASFS. Frank thanks us, and through us, all of LASFS

New business: "It is hereby resolved and seconded that all people who went to the LAX Marriott be declared a bunch of placard-lugging pug-lackers."

The ayes had it. It is thus resolved.

Fannish Committee Reports: Joe Zeff would like to announce that as of this morning his novel is on track, just past 40 kilowords. He got 600 more words written today while he was at Thanksgiving dinner. (Joe, you are supposed to eat the turkey, not write it. – ed.)

Frank Gasperik notes the Committee to bring Frank Gasperik to LASFS and Loscon announced an end to major operations. Everything remaining is an in-office procedure.
